CRIME.

WALWORTH SENTENCED TO IMPRISONMENT FOR LIFE.

HE RECEIVED THE SENTENCE WITH CHARACTERISTIC COOLNESS.

JUDGE DAVIS DELIVERS HIM A SOUND AND SENSIBLE LECTURE.

A DESPERADO SHOT BY A DEPUTY SHERIFF IN INDIANA.

A COLORED MURDERER'S DEATH WARRANT SIGNED.

ETC., ETC., ETC.

WALWORTH SENTENCED.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Frank H. Walworth, who shot his father and has been convicted of murder in the second degree, was sentenced this morning to imprisonment for life. Walworth was attended in court by his mother, brother and sisters, and a number of relatives and friends. His counsel, except Mr. Beach, were present. Mr. O'Connor sitting beside the young criminal. Walworth presented the same demeanor that has characterized him throughout the trial, wholly insensible to the position he occupies in the estimation of a great body of people. He heard and moved the sentence "state's prison for life," and at the close retired from the court-room accompanied by his mother and the sheriff's officers. Mr. O'Connor is endeavoring to induce the sheriff to allow Walworth to remain in the Tomb, in hopes a pardon from the governor may save him from prison.

JUDGE DAVIS REMARKS.

New York, July 5.—Judge Davis before the sentence said the evidence, in his opinion, justified the verdict, and he was not sure but it would have justified murder in the first degree, although he could understand the motives which prompted the jury to render the verdict which they did. He then continued: "The duty I am to perform rendered doubly painful by the fact that you belong to a family honored and distinguished both in the civil and military annals of your country. Your grandfather, on one hand, was as has been truly said by your counsel, for so long time, chief equity judge of this great state, and he left a record for purity and integrity, and for all the private virtues that adorn and elevate man, second to none who have attained to high a station, and your grandfather on your mother's side, tall nobly fighting for his country on the field of battle, and left a record of which all his descendants may well be proud. It is with grief that I feel bound to express my sorrow that the memory of these great ancestors should not have deterred you from the commission of such a crime as that of which you are convicted. Your poor mother had, indeed, cause to regret her relations to the father you have slain. You also had great cause to feel not grieved merely, but ashamed and indignant at the long course of outrages toward her and his family, but bad as he was, you were not to be the avenger of those wrongs. He had done nothing to forfeit his life, even to the laws of his country, at least of all had he done anything to forfeit his life at the hands of his own and eldest son. When I look back upon that moment when you constituted yourself his executioner and slew him in that room with no one present but yourselves, I cannot but feel that that death must have been to him more horrible than a thousand deaths in any other form. Called by you to your presence, apparently for purposes of a peaceful interview to settle the family difficulties, invited to a seat in your room, and apparently almost instantly confronted with a weapon of death in his own son's hands, what thoughts must have rushed on him that moment when he found that the person whom he had expected to come to him for purposes of a peaceful arrangement had come to kill him! What thoughts, what terrible thoughts, must have rushed on him when he received the leaden messenger of death in his bosom from the hands of his eldest boy! I shudder when I think of it, and I think you ought to devote your whole life to a re-pentance such as God only can accept as a horrible deed."

WALWORTH, July 5.—Walworth, after the sentence, said: "I am glad I did not have to endure the long lecture I had anticipated. Judge Davis would inflict upon me. I thoroughly understand my position. I did not want any instruction in relation thereto. I simply wish to arrange my affairs and I shall then submit myself to my fate with all the equanimity I can command."
